Biography

Jim Bauer provides counsel to insurers on first-party and third-party coverage claims. He also litigates complex claims and defends insureds against contract claims and other commercial disputes arising in a variety of industries, ranging from manufacturing, to oil and gas production, to food storage.

Before joining Fields Howell, Jim served as a senior associate at a global firm where he specialized in complex insurance coverage disputes. He's handled matters arising out of major natural disasters, including nine-figure property losses following Superstorm Sandy and Hurricane Harvey. He also played a significant role in the market-wide response to COVID-19 property-insurance claims, several of which he litigated nationwide. And he successfully arbitrated a first-party claim coverage dispute arising out of a multi-million dollar theft.

In addition to his property-insurance work, Jim has counseled insurers on claims under professional liability, technology, auto, and cyber risks. Notably, he represented several domestic and European insurers in connection with a claim for substantial losses arising from the NotPetya cyberattack.

Before his work in private practice, Jim specialized in communications and speechwriting for various political campaigns and a high-profile political appointee.

Jim is a 2011 graduate of Wake Forest University School of Law, where he served as Editor-in-Chief for the Wake Forest Journal of Law & Policy. In law school, he was also invited as a guest editor for the symposium issue of the Harvard Journal of Law & Public Policy. Jim holds an undergraduate degree in broadcast journalism and political science from Syracuse University.
